Canadian Council for Refugees: Become a member

Join the vibrant national network of 200 member organizations and individuals who benefit from:

Networking opportunities across Canada

Connect with other organizations and individuals working across Canada to support refugees and immigrants by:

- Sharing information, tools and best practices;
- Identifying emerging issues;
- Planning joint action to address pressing issues affecting refugees and immigrants.

Professional development opportunities

As a member, you can access:

- Free online training opportunities through webinars.
- Online national discussions to explore emerging issues and share strategies across regions.
- Lower registration rates at our national Consultations.

Regular updates, policy analysis and practical resources

Receive regular updates on:

- Refugee and immigration issues and analyses of policy changes.
- Up-to-date information and practical tools to support your daily work and your outreach efforts.
- Exclusive online information: reports of meetings with government, fellow member contact info, and more!

Legal interventions

Support legal interventions by the CCR's pro-bono Legal Affairs Committee in key Supreme Court and Federal Court cases that strengthen the rights of refugees and other vulnerable migrants.

National newcomer youth engagement

Support newcomer youth engagement on a national level through the CCR's Youth Network. The CCR:

- Provides a Canada-wide space for youth to meet.
- Engages youth in creatively expressing their concerns.
- Promotes the leadership of newcomer youth.

Being part of a recognized, collective voice

Join a recognized, collective voice by:

- Bringing forward issues and concerns for dialogue with government;
- Developing strategies for action, advocacy and change;
- Voting at our meetings;
- Taking on leadership roles at a national level;
- Participating in activities at many levels – from local to international.

The CCR has been the national voice on refugee protection and newcomer settlement in Canada for over 40 years. Don't wait to be part of this network. Join today!
